CLEARING SKIES AROUSES HOPE

Ideal Weather Draws What is Believed to be Banner Crowd of Years to Fair.

PREDICTED 10,000 WILL ATTEND

People Begin Going to Grounds Early in Morning—Rushville to "Shut up Shop."

With clearing skies and a cool, delightful breeze from the southwest Thursday morning dawned, and with it came the prospects of the largest crowd at the best day's Rush county fair which has been held in years.

For many years past either lowering clouds or heavy rains have kept thousands of people away from the fair on the big day, Thursday. Last year and the year before the day was spoiled and in 1911 it was necessary to call off the races Thursday and Friday because of falling weather.

But this morning predictions were being freely made that a record for a Thursday crowd for the last ten years would be made today. It was estimated by many that the crowd would be near ten thousand. People began going to the fair grounds at six o'clock this morning and the auto hacks and I. & C. traction trains did a big business.

By ten o'clock this morning it was estimated that there were twice as many people on the grounds as there were all day yesterday. A large crowd thronged about the show ring back of the amphitheater to watch the showing of stock. The shows and stands began to do a big business early in the morning and they were all pleased with the prospects for the day.

The free exhibition was given twice yesterday afternoon. It is accepted as one of the best attractions here in years. The Rushville band is furnishing the music for the fair this year.

Indications at noon were that business would be at a standstill in the city this afternoon and that all activity would be transplanted on the fair grounds. Practically every store in the city was to be closed this afternoon until five o'clock. The postoffice, saloons and banks were about the only places of business to be left open. All the offices in the court house were to be shut at noon for the remainder of the day.

The same rule will apply tomorrow when almost as many Rushville people attend the fair as on Thursday.

Slight Accident on the Fair Ground Road Last Night.

While driving on the road to the fair grounds last night in his automobile, Joe Lakin accidentally ran into a horse driven by Derby Green. Mrs. Green and daughter Catherine were in the rig with Mr. Green and both were badly frightened.

MAIS COMPANY INCORPORATED

Motor Truck Concern in Which Local Capitalists Are Interested Will Take Over Business.

FORMAL RECORD OF THE SALE

Articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of State yesterday incorporating a new company, to be known as the Mais Motor Truck Company of Indianapolis, to take over the business of the Mais Motor Truck Company. It is the intention of the stockholders of the older company to dissolve it at an early date and the common stock, aggregating $1,000,000 of the new company will be turned over to Frank H. Wheeler of Indianapolis, Walter M. Pearce of this city and others in full payment for the machinery and other assets of the company. The principal place of business of the new company will be in Indianapolis and the directors are as follows: Frank H. Wheeler, Indianapolis, president; Walter M. Pearce, Rushville, vice-president; Alvin S. Lockard, Indianapolis, secretary-treasurer; Harry G. Francis, Rushville; Semour Avery, Indianapolis.

Formal record of the sale of the truck company's property by Franklin Vonnegut, receiver, was made with the Marion county recorder yesterday. The consideration was given as $71,000. Under the deed the conveyance was made to Walter M. Pearce of this city and others.

BOY NEARLY DROWNED.

Louis, age nine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson, who are following the fairs, almost lost his life in Flatrock yesterday afternoon. His parents and he were visiting with members of the Guy Stock Company, with whom they are acquainted when he slipped out of the tent and over to the river. He accidentally fell in the water, and was rescued by Carl Hall, a player with the Guy troupe, who was attracted by the boy's screams.

ATTORNEY SAYS IT'S BIG BLUFF

Counsel For Accused Man Declares Bribery Charge is Grand Stand Play by State.

TRIAL IS SET FOR MONDAY

Jury is Empanelled and the Second Hearing of Price Murder Case is Started.

"It is a grand stand play on the part of the State."

That is the only comment Attorney Lee Tremain would make on the bribery charge brought against his client, Albert Fisher, by James W. Clemons, a venireman in the Price murder case, according to a Greensburg newspaper.

A jury to try Zachariah Price, charged with the murder of his farm tenant, Fletcher Cook, was obtained yesterday afternoon and the trial proceeded. The jurymen are Fred Hudler, Charles Johnson, Henry Mezingo, Edward Sefton, Emmett Johnson, D. W. Appel, Henry Jenkins, Charles S. Reed, J. C. Cascade, Ed Templeton, Charles Swope and Seely Oakley.

Mr. Tremain was retained by Fisher and appeared for him when he was arraigned in Justice Creath's court Wednesday. The attorney strove for half an hour to induce the State to go into trial at once. Horace C. Skillman, deputy prosecutor, who appeared for the State insisted on delay. He said that the State has a witness who is now on the jury and who is not accessible and might not be until next Monday.

Mr. Tremain said that if the State would ascertain what this witness expected to testify to it might be possible to make concessions and go ahead with the hearing. When it became certain that an immediate trial could not be had, Mr. Tremain sought to have his client released on his own recognizance, but Mr. Skillman objected to this. Mr. Meek also insisted that Fisher be allowed to go without bond, but finally consented to become surety for him. Counsel agreed to have the hearing next Monday.

Fisher briefly stated that the charges were groundless and intimated that it was merely spite work.

His counsel, Mr. Tremain, declined to give out a formal statement and would not discuss the case further than to deny the charges. He said it looked to him like a scheme on the part of the State to turn sentiment against the defendant in the murder case.

Mr. Clemons, the venireman, who says that he was approached by Mr. Fisher and offered $200 to vote an acquittal for Price was present when Fisher was arraigned. As the situation stands now it looks like a question of veracity between Fisher and Clemons.

SUN BROS. ON THE JOB

Southern Circus Arrives Here For Two Performances.

Sun Brothers circus made its appearance in Rushville today. Some people were disappointed because of the failure to the tented exhibition to produce a street parade, Rushville's first experience in that line. The show came from Newcastle. They claim to have the highest salaried artists in the business.

POPULAR PASTOR DIES AT EATON, O.

The Rev. W. H. Sands, Formerly 1st Presbyterian Minister Here, Expires From Complications.

LOVED BY ALL WHO KNEW HIM

Assisted in Organization of Winona Assembly in 1895—Funeral Held at Dublin.

The funeral services of the Rev. William H. Sands, aged sixty-two, formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian church here, who died Tuesday at his home in Eaton, Ohio, will be held this afternoon at the Eaton Presbyterian church at one-thirty o'clock, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. C. A. Hunter. Immediately thereafter the body will be taken to Dublin, Wayne county, for burial.

The Rev. Mr. Sands, who was one of the most popular pastors ever in Rushville will be remembered by many Rushville people. The news of his death was received here by Mrs. Will A. Jones. He held the pastorate here about twenty years ago.

Death was due to a complication of diseases brought on by an attack of locomotor ataxia sustained about seven years ago. His last illness preceded his death dates back two weeks, at which time he took to his bed. During the last two or three days preceding his demise he lay in an unconscious state.

Dr. Sands entered the ministry in September, 1885, being ordained at Winchester, Ind. He filled charges at Cambridge City, Hagerstown, Greenfield, Rushville and other points in Indiana. He assisted in the organization of Winona assembly, Warsaw, Ind., in 1895. He was pastor-at-large in the Indian territory in 1903. He was pastor of the Eaton Presbyterian church at Eaton from June 17, 1899, to August 4, 1901. Because of disabilities he was compelled to cease activities in April, 1905.

Dr. Sands was united in marriage to Miss Carrie Hoffman of Dublin, Ind., on January 16, 1878. He held membership in the Masonic and the Knights of Pythias fraternities.

Dr. Sands leaves a widow, Carrie, one daughter, Mrs. Clem White of Eaton and one son, Wilfred Sands, who resides in the East.

MULDOONS WILL PLAY HERE SUNDAY

Fast Cincinnati Team Will be the Attraction at South Main Street Grounds.

FANS EXPECT GOOD GAME

Manager Maibaugh has secured one of the best teams in Cincinnati in the Muldoons, which will play here Sunday. The Muldoons have a great reputation and the team will make Rushville play to win. This is the first game this year with a Cincinnati team and as the rest have proved easy the fans are anxious to see how the locals will perform.

The Rushville line-up will remain as it was last Sunday when the Mt. Jackson Athletics of Indianapolis were taken into camp, 4 to 1. Avery will be in the box and Anderson will do the catching. With Avery in good form Rushville should win but at that they will be compelled to play hard. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

TWO MEN ON WHEELS HURT

Eli Kinney and Allen Daniels Thrown Off of Bicycles.

Two accidents very similar in nature occurred yesterday and Allen Daniels and Eli Kinney were very painfully hurt. Mr. Kinney's bicycle skidded on the wet pavement at the corner of Main and Second streets, and threw him off. He sustained severe bruises. As he was rounding the corner of Fifth and Perkins streets, Allen Daniels' handle-bars on his bicycle slipped and he was thrown heavily to the ground. He fell on a pile of rocks and was so badly cut and strained by the accident that he was unable to attend to his duties at his barber shop today.

FARMERS ARE STILL PARTIAL TO THOSE BIG THRESHING DINNERS

Women, As of Yore, Are Willing to Swifter For Sake of Big Feast.

HELPERS ALL EXPECT IT

There has been a great deal of agitation of late about the abolishment of the good old threshing dinners. From several sources stories come to the effect that the "big dinner" is coming to be a thing of the past, and that in a short time we shall know them no more. On the face of things these stories sound well, but by any person who has attended a threshing in this county this summer the story is not believed. The doubting persons will soon be convinced should they visit the country now, especially a farm on which they are threshing.

LOCAL HORSES MAKE BEST SPORT

Five Heats Necessary to Decide the County Road Trot at First Day's Fair Races.

FLORENCE L SHOWS SPEED

2:27 Trot and 2:25 Pace Are Won in Straight Heats—Case of Allen Boy.

The country road trot, in which all the horses were Rush county stock and the drivers were all local men, furnished the best sport on the first day's speed card at the Rush county fair. The other two races, the 2:25 pace and the 2:27 trot, were won in straight heats.

There were Rushville trainers in the pace and the trot also. Bruce Graham sat behind Silar Hure in the trot, Scott Brannan drove Posey R. and Fred Dagler held the reins over Springline. In the pace Bruce Graham drove Commett and Scott Brannan, Florence Simmore.

J. Davis was not pushed much in winning the 2:25 pace in straight heats with the little brown mare Edna Hillis. He was seldom ever in danger of losing a heat, with one or two exceptions, when Creato, driven by Frank Tinkler, was close on his heels on the home stretch.

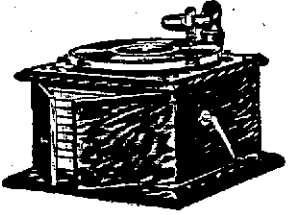

Scott Brannan, the colored trainer of this city, has been winning with the black daughter of Simmore this season, but the last place in the summary in a five horse race was the best he could do yesterday. He won a pace with Florence Simmore at Columbus only last week. Bruce Graham, the other Rushville driver in the pace, had to be content with fourth position with his sorrell gelding. The pace furnished the best of the afternoon, the last heat being caught in 2:21 1/4.

Allen Boy, a black gelding owned and driven by W. A. Smith of St. Louis Crossing, Bartholomew county, who won the trot in straight heats, has been in training only six weeks. The owner, as well as the judges, thought it a very good exhibition of speed for so little training. It is only the second time the horse was ever started. He was given a slow mark at Columbus last week, his first start, when he won one heat.

The other entries in the race were driven by Rushville horsemen and furnished the only exciting finishes in the race. Bruce Graham, driving Silas Hure, a black stallion, finished third the first heat, but was nosed back to fourth place the second heat by Spring line, Fred Dagler's horse. Posey R., Scott Brannan's entry, beat Springline to the wire in the first heat, but had to be content with last position the other two heats.

But it remained for the Rush county horses and drivers to give Continued on Page 3.

SENATE HEARS FROM PENROSE

Pennsylvania Senator Gives His Side of the Story.

EXPLAINS ARCHBOLD LETTER

In Addition to This He Pays His Compliments to Flinn and Van Valkenburg and Goes into Further Details Regarding Some Features of Campaign Contributions to Republican National Committee in 1904.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Rising to a question of personal privilege in the senate, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania made his promised disclosures in regard to the Roosevelt 1904 campaign fund.

Senator Penrose charged that the Standard Oil company contributed $125,000 toward the promotion of Roosevelt's candidacy. Subsequently the late Cornelius N. Bliss, Mr. Roosevelt's treasurer of the national committee, called on the Standard for $150,000 more. Officials of the trust declined the second invitation. Mr.
Bliss, according to Penrose, represented that both Mr. Roosevelt and George B. Cortelyou, his national chairman, knew of the original contribution and "appreciated it." Not only this, but the demand for the additional $150,000, so Penrose charged, purported to come from Mr. Roosevelt himself and from George Cortelyou.

Mr. Penrose also charged that E. A.
Van Valkenburg, editor of the Philadelphia North American, another Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania, was arrested and indicted for bribery in 1896 and escaped conviction only through the leniency of Senator Quay and on the payment of about $10,000 for costs.

These disclosures by Penrose are,
it is expected, only a beginning. Mr.
Penrose's remarks were followed with close attention in the senate.

"The malicious efforts made to misrepresent a transaction which at the time was entirely legal and proper,"
said the Pennsylvania senator, "is only part of the systematic efforts of the Flinn-Van Valkenburg combination in Pennsylvania to break me down and deceive the people through the unscrupulous methods of yellow journalism."

Regarding the letter alleged to have been written to Penrose by John D.
Archbold, inclosing a certificate of deposit in his favor for $25,000, written under date of Oct. 13, 1904, Senator Penrose said: "I have reason to believe that this letter is a forgery, and I challenge its production; but it is true and, at the time, it was well known, that during the presidential campaign of 1904 I did receive such a contribution from Archbold for the campaign in Pennsylvania. The contribution was part of a much larger one, which I will now explain."

"I was at the time chairman of the Republican state committee of Pennsylvania and a member of the Republican national committee representing that state. I was at the Republican headquarters in Philadelphia in full charge of the state campaign, and I was every week in New York in close touch with many of the phases of the national campaign."

"Mr. John D. Archbold had several interviews with C. N. Bliss, treasurer of the Republican national committee, and me relative to financial assistance in the campaign. Finally we came to an understanding by which Mr. Archbold made a contribution of $125,000,
of which $100,000 was to go to Mr.
Bliss as treasurer of the Republican national committee for the presidential campaign outside of Pennsylvania and $25,000 was to be contributed to me as state chairman for the campaign in Pennsylvania. Mr. Archbold received the receipt of Mr. Bliss as treasurer and as representing the Republican national committee for the amount of $100,000. The contribution of $25,000 so received by me as chairman of the Republican state committee of Pennsylvania was expended in the presidential campaign in that state."

"Not long after the contribution of $100,000 to the Republican national committee, Mr. Bliss, on behalf of the committee, called again to see Mr.
Archbold and asked for a further contribution of $150,000. He represented that Mr. Roosevelt had been advised of the original contribution, as had the chairman of the Republican national committee, Mr. Cortelyou, and that the contribution was appreciated by both,
but that the need of further financial assistance was badly felt at headquarters and that such further assistance would be still more appreciated by both the gentlemen referred to. The demand was urgent, insistent, and I may say imperative, and purported to come direct from Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Cortelyou. I knew personally at the time that Mr. Archbold wanted to make this further contribution, and felt that it was presented to him in a way that made him desire to make it,
but he was overruled by his associates,
who felt that sufficient had been done,
and a further contribution was not made."

"Mr. William Flinn of this unhappy combination, which until recently Mr. Roosevelt would have been quick to denounce and repudiate, has made a fortune out of crooked municipal contracts and the corrupt control of municipal councils and state legislatures. Upon the death of Senator

Quay in 1904 Mr. Flinn became a candidate to succeed him in the United States senate. In Philadelphia during a discussion of the successorship to Quay, Mr. Flinn offered to Israel W.
Durham, a Republican leader in Philadelphia, and to me $1,000,000 or even $2,000,000, to favor his ambition, and the offer was known to others at the time. The offer was declined and we refused to support his candidacy. Mr.
Flinn still desires to go to the United States senate. His friends openly avow his ambition and his activity for Mr. Roosevelt and the reforms to which he has recently become a convert from his unrepentant days are prompted by this desire."

As soon as Senator Penrose had finished his formal statement Senator Stone of Missouri arose.

"While the senator from Pennsylvania is at the congressional and in a confessing mood," said Senator Stone,
"it occurred to me that he might be able and willing to add something to the gayetty of the occasion."

Mr. Stone then referred to the late E. H. Harriman's raising $250,000 at the request of Roosevelt, and said:
"The president denounced Mr. Harriman as a liar and conferred upon him
the thirty-second degree in his Ananias club. Can the senator from Pennsylvania tell the senate and the country
what he knows about that transaction, if he knows anything?"

Up bopped the Pennsylvania senator again, apparently perfectly willing to answer any and all questions on campaign contributions.

"Quite a while has elapsed since these transactions occurred," said he,
"but there are papers on file and a number of letters accessible, interesting documents, and I have no doubt as this discussion develops during the campaign, should any gentleman desire to press it, these matters will see the light of day, and I think it would be very beneficial to the American public, too, to have many of these transactions exposed."

This statement was accepted by the senate as a plain intimation that Mr.
Penrose has fired only a part of his ammunition.

"Where are these papers?" asked Mr. Stone.

"They are hidden," said Penrose.
"In the archives of campaign committees and in cellars and vaults of business houses and offices of lawyers in different places throughout the country."

THE OTHER SIDE

Flinn, Van Valkenburg, Roosevelt and Archbold Have Their Say.

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—Former State Senator William Flinn of Pittsburg and E. A. Van Valkenburg, the editor, were in conference nearly all day yesterday awaiting the statement of Senator Penrose on the floor of the senate. Late last night Flinn issued a long statement in which he says among other things: "As a matter of fact, I never asked either Penrose nor Durham to support me for senator. I never even discussed the matter with them—men who were my personal and political enemies, with whom I had no relations since 1896."

"Senator Penrose, caught red-handed with Standard Oil money, evidently made his statement in reference to me for the combined purpose of linking the waters like a fish that he might withdraw himself from the public gaze, and to provoke the only possible retort which can characterize a man making such a statement."

"I do not propose to lend myself to his plan. But there may be a way in which he can be withdrawn from his shield of personal privilege in the United States senate. If so, he will have an opportunity to add a perjured soul to the other chief characteristics which disclose Penrose to the people—
a black heart and corrupt hands."

Editor Van Valkenburg said: "Senator Penrose's reference to me concerns one of thirty or forty suits which he and his co-corruptors of Pennsylvania have brought against me during the last fifteen years, not one of which has yet been brought to trial."
He declares that the accusations that he paid one dollar or consented to have one dollar paid or had knowledge that one dollar was paid in the settlement of costs against him is unqualifiedly false.

"Senator Penrose's evident purpose
in bringing my name into a statement before the senate is to forestall the presentation of evidence in the possession of the North American that he is a briber and corruptor, such as has not been exposed in public life in this country in recent years," Mr. Van Valkenburg concludes.

Denied by Roosevelt.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 22.—Late last night, while a crowd clamored for a speech outside Father Curran's parish house, Colonel Roosevelt was shown a report of Senator Penrose's speech in the senate. He interrupted proceedings long enough to dictate a denial. He said: "The only part of the Penrose statement that needs comment by me is that portion in which it is asserted that I had been advised of a heavy campaign contribution from the Archbold crowd in behalf of the Standard Oil company and that I directly asked a contribution from Mr. Archbold and his associates interested in the Standard Oil company.
This statement is false."

Archbold Takes His Time.

New York, Aug. 22.—When informed of the important points of Senator Penrose's speech, John D. Archbold said that he did not care to say anything in reply until he had read the speech, that he did not care to say anything until he had read the speech.

PROMPT MOVEMENT OF REINFORCEMENTS

Additional Fighting Force Sent to Nicaragua.

Washington, Aug. 22.—A regiment of American marines and additional warships have just been ordered to Nicaragua. The situation has become critical and Mr. Weitzel, the American minister, is practically in control of the capital. He has issued an emphatic warning to General Mena, commanding the revolutionary forces, that the capital, Managua, must be recognized as a haven of refuge for foreigners.

Orders for the prompt movement of reinforcements were issued just about the time Senator Bacon of Georgia was introducing in the senate a resolution forbidding the use of American military in Nicaragua.

The additional forces are being rushed to Nicaragua upon the urgent appeal of Minister Weitzel, who cal-ed that more troops were absolutely needed not only at Managua, but at Corinto, San Juan Del Sur and a number of important towns in the interior which are being threatened by the rebels.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—Miss Nancy Leishman, daughter of Ambassador Leishman, and her sister, the Countess De Contant-Biron, were returning with their mother from a vacation at Calrsbad when the party met with an automobile accident. The wheels skidded and the car turned over into a ditch and was badly wrecked. All the women were thrown out of the car. It was at first reported that the two daughters had been dangerously injured, but an examination by physicians at Ingol-stadt, where they were hastily taken by another automobile which came up after the accident, showed that this was not so.

Seal Was Broken It Was Found to Contain Name of His Eldest Son.

London, Aug. 22.—In a sealed document which was opened in the presence of all the Salvation Army commissioners who were present in London, A. W. Ranger, one of the army's attorneys, at the international headquarters on Queen Victoria street, Bramwell Booth, eldest son of the late Gen. William Booth, was designated by the latter as his successor.
At this meeting Mr. Ranger produced a sealed envelope which he stated the late Gen. Booth handed to him twenty-two years ago. The envelope bore in the general's handwriting the inscription: "The appointment of my successor." Mr. Ranger cut the envelope open without breaking the seal, and handed the document to his partner,
Mr. Frost, who read the appointment.
Bramwell Booth in accepting the generalship said that even if no other condition moved him to take the post, he would do so because "it was my general's wish. I am strengthened in that purpose by the fact, of which I had no knowledge until a few moments ago, that the appointment was made during the lifetime of my beloved mother."

The new commander-in-chief invoked strength and wisdom from God to enable him to discharge his responsibilities. He promised to discharge his obligations to the utmost of his ability, and appealed to the army for help in doing this. In paying a tribute to his father Bramwell said: "It would be difficult to look out upon the world with such hearts as we have and not feel that it is a poor place for us, but that it would be vastly poorer if he had never lived and blessed it."

General Bramwell Booth, the new international commander, was born in Halifax in 1856. In 1882 he married Captain Florence Soper, who volunteered for service in France.

WANT TO GO HOME

Members of Congress Anxious About Their Political Fences.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Unless some obstacle is thrown in the way, congress will adjourn Saturday night.
Leaders in both houses are working to this end. There is hardly a quorum of either the senate or the house in Washington, and the leaders do not think it will be possible to keep members here after Saturday. Three or four appropriation bills are in conference, but early agreements on all of them are in sight. Members are anxious to get back home to look after their fences, and they are making ready to leave the latter part of the week.

President Taft has won his fight for the existence of the commerce court.
The house Democrats gave up the ghost on the refusal of the senate to pass the executive bill over the president's veto. The contest between house Democrats and the president over the commerce court was spectacular. Mr. Taft vetoed the executive bill twice. The bill as passed appropriated $42,000 for the court, sufficient to keep the tribunal going until March 4, 1913.

"SAFETY FIRST" CAMPAIGN IS ON

Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Extends New System to C. H. & D. This Month.

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

Desire is That All Employees Act as Committee of One to Prevent Accidents.

Beginning August 1st the "Safety First" campaign of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad which was inaugurated several months ago for the promotion of safety to the traveling public and the railroad employees in discharge of duty, will be established on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton lines. The safety committees will be under the jurisdiction of the General Safety Committee, with headquarters at Baltimore. The personnel of the General Safety Committee includes A. W. Thompson, third vice-president, chairman ex-officio; A. Hunter Boyd, Jr., assistant general attorney, chairman; J. W. Coon, assistant to general manager, vice-chairman; Earl Stinson, engineer maintenance of way; C. W. Egan, general claim agent, and Dr. J. F. Tearney, assistant chief medical examiner.

Division safety committees have been appointed on the C. H. & D., with Superintendents J. J. Cochran, of the Toledo Division; R. B. White of the Indianapolis Division, and M. V. Hynes, of the Delphoe-Springfield Division as chairman. The division safety committees are composed of division officials, including train master, division engineer, division claim agent, agents of important freight terminals, medical examiner, secretaries of railroad Young Men's Christian Association, an employee from each shop to represent shopmen, engineer to represent engine-men, conductor to represent trainmen and yard master to represent yard employees.

For the purpose of organizing the division safety committees, members of the general safety committee from Baltimore will make a trip to division headquarters, of the C. H. & D. at Indianapolis and Dayton, on August 7 and 8 respectively. Prior to organizing the C. H. & D. committees the general officers will conduct regular meetings at Washington, Ind., and Cincinnati, on August 5 and 6 respectively. At Washington, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Dayton an open meeting in which the railroad men and safety committeemen will participate will be held at 8 o'clock in the evening. Stereopticon slides will be shown to illustrate the causes of many railroad accidents.

The method of procedure in the propagation of the safety methods by the Baltimore and Ohio is for the Divisional Committee, whose membership embraces officials and employees thoroughly familiar with local conditions, to lay before the General Committee such matters as will tend to bring about improvements in the safety and efficiency of operation and protection to employees and the public. The meetings of the divisional committees will take place at various points on the road, subject to the call of the Chairman.

In launching the safety movement the chairmanship of the auxiliary committees is vested in the superintendents for a period of six months, the plan providing for a progression to the office so that each member may serve as chairman. This same organization is carried out in the committee of general officers, with the exception of the vice-chairmanship which is permanent.

Employees while serving on the Safety Committee or making investigations are exempt from other duties so that their time may be devoted to a study of the work of the committees. While so engaged the men are allowed full pay by the company together with such expenses as may be incurred.

Third Vice-President Thompson, chairman ex-officio of the General Safety Committee, in outlining the work of the Safety Committee, said: "We desire all of our employees to act as a Committee of one and to see that everything possible is done to prevent accidents and the suggestions of the men should be solicited through the Divisional Safety Committeemen. It is my personal desire that all the division officers shall take an interest in this question of safety. Any suggestion that may occur to any employee which he feels will advance the work will be carefully considered."

PREVENTATIVE IS IMPROVED

New Prophylactic Treatment For Typhoid Fever Has No Bad After Effect.

USE IS COMPULSORY IN ARMY

Three Injections of Solution Given by Hypodermic at Ten Day Intervals.

Remarkable results are being obtained by the use of the new typhoid fever preventive, "typhoid prophylactic," according to Brigadier-General Robert H. Evans, U. S. A., chief of the division of militia affairs. The unpleasant after effects of the old-thousand soldiers of the regular army felt, the new method being an entirely painless one, and out of forty thousand soldiers of the regular army that have taken that treatment the only after effects have been an occasional headache, lasting a few hours, and once or twice a slight fever has resulted, but has disappeared within an hour or two.

In the army and navy the treatment now is compulsory, and the medical corps of the army has had extra proof of the efficacy of the treatment.

The prophylactic treatment is not compulsory in the national guard, but it is administered, to the members who may desire it. Brigadier-General Evans says that about one-third of the District of Columbia, both officers and men, are voluntarily taking the treatment before going to the camp at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., on August 14. He has a notion that it would be a good thing for the militia-men of Indiana, and those of other states too, for that matter to be inoculated with the anti-typhoid fluid.

"The word vaccination employed in connection with the new injection treatment is being used too freely," said an army surgeon, detailed in the division of militia affairs. "Consequently, a false impression of the prophylactic is given to a great many who are ignorant of the treatment. It is not properly a vaccination at all, but merely an injection with a hypodermic needle. Three injections are necessary, at intervals of ten days. The first injection is seven and one-half drops of the solution, and the second and third injections fifteen drops.

"In order to prepare the prophylactic, typhoid germs are grown in culture tubes and the bacilli are killed by heat. These dead germs, combined with salt solution, constitute the formula. The action of this preventive of typhoid is to put the blood in the same condition as that of a man who has had typhoid fever. If live germs get into the blood of a person who has received the injection they are killed by the action of the solution. Just now it is not known whether a person is always immune after receiving the treatment once, but we know that it makes him less susceptible to the disease. It is thought that the treatment should be repeated every eight or ten years.

"The first dose seven and one-half drops of the solution, contains 500,000,000 dead germs, and the other two doses each contain 1,000,000,000."

Mrs. J. E. Henry, Akron, Mich., tells how she did so: "I was bothered with my kidneys and had to go nearly double. I tried a sample of Foley Kidney Pills and they did me so much good that I bought a bottle, and feel that they saved me a big doctor's bill." F. B. Johnson & Co.

Mrs. M. A. McLaughlin, 512 Jay St., LaCrosse, Wis., writes that she suffered all kinds of pains in her back and hips on account of kidney trouble and rheumatism. "I got some Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them for a few days there was a wonderful change in my case, for the pain entirely left my back and hips and I am thankful there is such a medicine as Foley Kidney Pills." SHOWS A WAY TAFT CAN WIN

Chicago Record Held Says Progressives' Figures Point to Republican Success in Fall.

DOPESTERS AT WORK ALREADY

President's Phenomenal Vote in 1908 Affords Safe Margin Against Danger in This Campaign.

The Chicago Record Herald's well-known Washington correspondent, Sumner Curtis, sends his paper the following interesting forecast of possible results in the coming election:

The political statistical sharks already are at it. The midsummer season of "doping out" how Taft, Wilson and Roosevelt respectively are sure of a majority in the electoral college is in full blast. Here is the way a progressive member of congress has figured a probable Taft victory under the caption: "Wilson's Task to Win the Presidency." It was passed around semi-privately among his colleagues today. The author explains: "Wilson may retain the Bryan popular vote of 1908, and Roosevelt may poll more votes in November by half a million than he did in the primaries, and Taft could still retain the electoral vote of the states that he carried in 1908 and win the election by a majority of 181 over Wilson in the electoral college. (Total electoral vote, 531; necessary to a choice, 266.)

"On this basis Wilson would be obliged to win ninety-one electoral votes from Taft in Republican territory in order to carry the election.

"With Colorado and Nevada added to the Republican column, Taft would win by a majority of 199 in the electoral college and Wilson would be obliged to secure 100 electoral votes from Taft.

"If the candidates nominated by the Republicans in the Nebraska primaries for electors should win by a combination of the Taft and Roosevelt forces three of the eight would be for Taft, and thus give him a majority of 205, making it necessary for Wilson to win 103 in territory that is normally Republican.

"For every vote that Roosevelt might poll from Wilson in the pivotal states Taft can lose an additional vote to Roosevelt and still win, to the point of an almost equal division of popular votes between Taft and Roosevelt in each state.

"On this basis he could lose heavily in the popular vote to Roosevelt as follows:

California	87,000
Connecticut	44,000
Idaho	16,000
Illinois	179,000
Iowa	74,000
Kansas	36,000
Maine	31,000
Massachusetts	169,000
Michigan	150,000
Minnesota	86,000
New Hampshire	19,000
New Jersey	82,000
New York	202,000
North Dakota	24,000
Ohio	69,000
Oregon	24,000
Pennsylvania	286,000
Rhode Island	19,000
South Dakota	27,000
Utah	18,000
Vermont	28,000
Washington	107,000
West Virginia	26,000
Wisconsin	81,000
Wyoming	5,000

"Roosevelt's popular vote in 1904 was 7,628,834 and Taft's popular vote in 1908 was 7,679,006, or 50,000 greater than Roosevelt's vote in 1904."

Mrs. Lela Love, wife of Wiley Love, a farmer living near Covena, Ga., says: "I have taken Foley Kidney Pills and find them to be all you claim for them. They gave me almost instant relief when my kidneys were sluggish and inactive. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers from kidney troubles." F. R. Johnson & Co.

Home Course In Road Making

III.—Method of Financing Improved Roads.

By LOGAN WALLER PAGE, Director Office of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture.

Copyright by American Press Association, 1912

IT is a matter of sound business policy to require that all road taxes be paid in cash. In the past the collection of labor for road building has been compulsory and the collection of money voluntary, but experience has shown that this system must be reversed. A tax which is levied for the purpose of developing resources hitherto undeveloped, which development would add to the people's wealth, cannot be considered a burden in any respect. It is an investment.

As to the methods of raising money for road building purposes, there are two systems which have been employed in different parts of the country, both with considerable success. One plan may be called the "pay as you go" system. Under this plan a small annual tax is levied, the proceeds of which may be used partly for the purchase of equipment and partly for actual work on the roads. This tax may be increased slightly at intervals, but

WORKING OUT THE TAX.

It continues to be paid as an annual tax, the proceeds of which are annually expended for road building purposes. This system has certain advantages, for example, in connection with this expenditure of the annual tax. While only a limited amount of work can be done each year, there is no opportunity for wasting large sums.

The people of the county gradually adapt themselves to the changed conditions, and the persons placed in charge of the road work have an opportunity of becoming efficient by their own experience before they come to handle larger sums of money, and another thing which has considerable weight with a large class of people is that the county is kept out of debt. Another advantage of this system is that when a county has a large taxable wealth a small annual levy will yield as large a sum as can be wisely expended.

The more enlightened and the more commercial a people are the larger is the application of the credit system in their business. In the early settlement of this country the money for development and business enterprises was borrowed from Europe. Gradually the eastern states increased in wealth to such an extent that they not only paid their European debts, but had money to loan for the up-building of their sister states in the west. At the present time some of the western states are joining with those in the east in lending money to Europe. During the past 100 years on the system of "going into debt for public improvements" this country has risen from a small dependent nation to the head of the list.

The disadvantages of the "pay as you go" system are that the work of road building proceeds too slowly. In a county which has 500 miles of road, 100 miles of which should be considered its main thoroughfares, if it raises a tax sufficient to build five miles of good road each year twenty years will be required to improve the 100 miles, and many of the citizens of the county would continue to pay taxes for years before they would receive any benefit therefrom.

The system of raising money for road building by issuing bonds is generally unpopular, because people dread the idea of debt.

The great advantage in the system of borrowing money for road building is that by securing the larger sums of money for immediate expenditure the work can be pushed more rapidly, and the roads which would otherwise require twenty or thirty years for their improvement can, under this system, be finished in four or five years. The people of the county begin to receive benefits from the work more quickly, and the benefits are sufficiently great to enable them to pay the interest on the borrowed money and to provide a sinking fund to pay back that money with more ease than they could pay the annual taxes in advance of the completion of the road.

Under the "pay as you go" plan the present generation builds the roads and the next generation gets the benefit of them. Under the bond issue policy both the present and the future generations receive the benefits and both help to pay for them.

It may be argued that the system of borrowing money for road building is more expensive for the reason that the money borrowed must be paid back as well as the interest thereon, which at 5 per cent in twenty years will amount to as much as the principal, and therefore for each dollar borrowed two will have to be paid back at the end of twenty years. This is not strictly true, however. The money will be borrowed as needed. Furthermore, a few thousand dollars placed in the bank at compound interest is sufficient for a sinking fund.

The above objection would in a measure apply to any similar transaction in the business world, and yet today 30 per cent of all the business of the civilized world is done on a credit basis. If nations, states, counties and individuals had listened to this argument this country of ours would today be almost as little known and as little developed as the continent of Africa.

When a community is building public roads for the use of its people all of the money borrowed for this purpose is placed in circulation among the people. They use it in their business transactions; they make it earn an interest often worth far more to them than the interest which the county pays for the sum. In other words, the county has the roads and the money which has been spent upon them.

The whole structure of our industrial and governmental fabric rests upon the mechanism of credit. The amount of legal tender actually in circulation in the United States in 1910 was only $34.52 per capita and would be pitifully inadequate to meet the demands of business if all transactions were conducted on a cash basis. The building of our great railroads, the financing of our war of independence and subsequent conflicts have been conducted through the powerful agency of credit. Our entire banking system, involving $1,533,534,000, rests upon the foundation stone of credit.

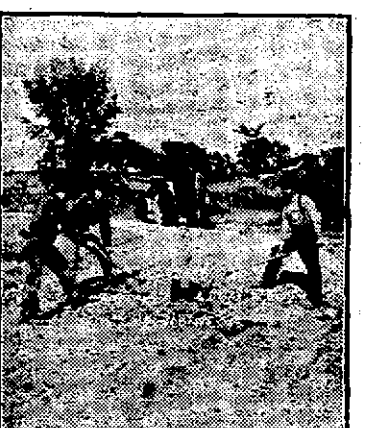

Would it be wise to advise a thrifty young farmer to refrain from buying a farm because he had not the entire purchase price in cash? Would it have ever been possible for the vast domains of the early landed proprietors to be divided up into small farms if the practice of partial payments had not been introduced?

It is evident that the construction of a large mileage of improved roads at one time would result in a lower cost per mile than if the roads were built a mile or so at a time, as the contractors having large plants and the quarries furnishing large quantities of material could utilize their equipment and material at less relative expense than on small jobs.

Because improved roads benefit all interests in the country all interests should help to pay for them. A county bond issue usually levies the cost upon the town property as well as the county property and thus relieves the farmer of part of the burden which he now bears under the old district or township system. In nearly every county in the United States which operates under the "pay as you go" plan the county property alone bears the entire cost of road building.

A bond issue is not an unjust burden on posterity, because through the increase in the value of land and the development of agricultural resources posterity is benefited. Therefore the son who inherits the wealth thus produced by the preceding generation should certainly help to pay the cost of the factors which are instrumental in bringing about this wealth.

The increase in farm values as the result of road improvement is so great that the tax rate is frequently lower than before the issuance of bonds. To substantiate this point the following extract is taken from a letter written by Hon. John L. Young, county judge of Dallas county, Tex., on June 21, 1911:

BUILDING ROADS UNDER A CASH SYSTEM OF TAXATION.

There is one very important item in connection with this county that I would call your attention to, and that is the reduction of taxes for the past five years, or, rather, since the building of good roads in this county. The value of property has increased to such an extent that the rate has been reduced from 30 cents in 1905 to 22 cents in 1910, or a reduction in taxes of 33 per cent, although we have issued bonds in the sum of $500,000 in the meantime.

There is one thing certain, and that is that we must have money for road building and that this money must be raised by taxation. Whether we adopt the "pay as you go" policy and build the roads only as fast as the money can be raised by taxation or issue bonds and thus borrow money in large quantities and build the roads now is a question for each state, county or township to decide for itself. In making this decision that method should be adopted which will give the quickest and best results with the least burden upon the individual taxpayer.

Wilson on The Farmers.

In what is called his first speech of the presidential campaign Candidate Wilson can hardly be said to have made a hit. It was delivered at Gloucester, in Prof. Wilson's home state, and it was made to a gathering of farmers. "Here we are at a farmers' picnic," said the candidate, "and on this day I suppose we might say that the farmers occupy the center of the stage. When did the farmers ever occupy the center of the stage in our politics? I don't remember any time. I have seen the interests of a great many classes specially regarded in legislation, but I must frankly say that I have seldom seen the interests of the farmers specially regarded in legislation."

Here is where Prof. Wilson was in cautions. His remarks, as he ought to have known, would be likely to get into the newspapers, and thus give an opportunity to some of his political enemies to consider on him. As a historian, Prof. Wilson must have seen some mention of the free-homes act, which was enacted by a Republican Congress and president in 1862. He must also have come across some reference to the legislation of the same year which gave rise to the agricultural colleges in the shape in which we know them today, which are a good deal more numerous than the states, and which have equipped thousands of men to be scientific farmers. He must have heard something, also, about the agricultural experiment stations under the government's auspices, which are doing a grand work for the tillers of the soil. The national irrigation law of 1902, which is reclaiming the arid West and planting tens of thousands of homes there, is something which somebody must have told him of. Then there is the rural free delivery, which operates on more than 50,000 routes, and which serves 20,000,000 of people. All these aids to the farmer are creations of legislation and all are Republican legislation.

"One of the greatest impositions upon the farmers of this country that has ever been devised is the present tariff legislation of the United States," says Prof. Wilson. The tariff has placed the factory beside the farm, has planted cotton mills in the neighborhood of cotton plantations, and has thus enabled the producer to get much higher prices for the things he raises than he would if he had to send them to distant markets, or to export them to Europe. Any intelligent farmer or planter can tell Prof. Wilson all this. This is a bad beginning for the Democratic candidate. It will give point to the remark of one of his quondam Democratic friends that he is too much of a pedagogue to see things as most of his fellow-citizens see them. In the schoolroom he was isolated from the people for so many years that he has not yet been able to get in touch with the vital and familiar things of life.

Breaking Party Ties.

The breaking of party ties is by far too serious a move to be decided upon at a moment's notice especially when that decision is based largely upon sentiment and upon the political idolatry of one man, says the Seymour Republican. Before a voter leaves the party with which he has been affiliated for many years, who believes in its principles of government and who has been accorded prosperity under its administration, he should think deliberately and seriously and felt assured in his own mind that the new organization will work to his own interest better than the party to which he belongs.

Viewed from all standpoints there seems to be no good reason why any Republican should take up or ever countenance any new organization. The Republican party has always stood for advancement and progress and has since its organization proceeded upon the theory that all men are created free and equal. It is the party of Lincoln, Grant and McKinley, and there has never been a Republican administration in which the country has not made a marked advancement in all lines of government. It is the party of the people, founded upon the theory that the nation will best progress when the best interests of the people are protected. It is the party that placed all mankind upon the equal basis of freedom and liberty and gave thousands of working men employment after several years of panic and financial depression of the worst character. What the republican party has done for the farmer is well known. By carrying out the principle of protection it has brought about better prices for farm products with the natural result of increased land values.

The republican party has always been the party of the veteran. It has given the soldiers every line of pension legislation that has ever been placed upon the statute books. Without the republican party the soldiers' widows today would be without their present pension income. It has always watched, guided and protected the interests of the veteran and will continue to do so as long as it remains in power. The soldiers know what the republican party has done for them, and it is fair to believe that they will have little favor for a new organization which places the Confederate veterans upon equal grounds with the Union soldiers. The veterans of the north were the ones who rallied to the flag in '61-'65, who sacrificed their lives and were willing to go to the front that the nation might be saved that the great principle of equality and freedom be established. The true patriots believe that these are the men who should receive the pecuniary aid from the government during the last years of their useful life.

The republican party is the party of patriotism, it is the party which has defended the red, the white and the blue, and it is composed of men who would fight for the sake of the nation now as willingly as they did in the early sixties in order to protect the rights of our people. There is no commendable plank in any platform which can not be found in the republican platform. With a very few exceptions the great statesmen of America will continue to keep their lot with the country's greatest party.

The republican party is built upon a firm foundation and as it has successfully overcome the obstacles of the past it will be amply able to stand all attempts to dethrone it which may be made in the future.

F. E. Smith, Unionist leader in the British parliament, landed in New York a few days ago, and told the reporters he had come over to get impressions of the United States. He said he was going to remain a week at Newport.

Whether he proposed to see anything else of the United States was not stated. But the only observable differences from his home country that Mr. Smith will find at that resort will be these: He will have to tip the servants dollars instead of shillings, and his hosts will be plain Misses instead of Lords.

No one sees America either if he merely confines his visits to the great cities. The great metropolitan centers of the world always average themselves. On a London street you would scarcely know you were not in New York, save for the smokiness of the buildings and their lack of height.

The real differences are to be seen everywhere and among everyday people. Mr. Smith will find them when he steps into a railroad car and sees it all one apartment, instead of a series of cupboards designed to restrict human contact. He will see it in any residence section, where the stroller is welcome to look at the rich man's fine landscape gardening, instead of passing through streets that are practically a tunnel between high and forbidding garden walls.

When it becomes possible to have perfection even in our own households or in ourselves, then we shall find things more satisfactory both in our party and in our government.

The Indianapolis Star, which has been converted into a political dog package for the Bull Moose party reiterates that Fred Landis was defeated for congress in 1900 because of the opposition of the Republican state machine, the inference being drawn that Mr. Landis was something of an insurgent in those days, says the Marion Chronicle. Republicans of this district remember that Mr. Landis made the central feature of his campaign a speaking tour by Joe Cannon, whom he and his associates revile in such lurid language since the government pay checks quit coming. The statement that five thousand Republicans in six counties voted against Landis through the influence of the Republican state organization is preposterous; the truth is that the state organization was doing everything within its power to elect Mr. Landis. There were very specific reasons for the defeat of Mr. Landis, involving his personal and political conduct, and it is becoming evident that nothing but a detailed recital of these reasons, some of which do not make particularly pleasant reading, will be necessary to satisfy the Star as to what it was retired Mr. Landis to the army of the unemployed six years ago.

T. R. Seeks another term. There are those who say it will not be a third term, and others who say it will be. Set aside all this quibbling, and the net results is that he has been in the White House already more than seven years. Regardless of the number of terms, there is no question as to the number of years. There are many—very many—sincere persons who think eleven years would be entirely too much for any one person, and the more ambitious he is the greater reason for considering this one point.

When an ambitious man becomes accustomed to seeing his name in the headlines on the front page of the newspapers every day, it is mighty hard for him to retire and give place to some other man. Human nature is human nature wherever you find it, and the more ambitious the man the more it is likely to be displayed.

Every 20 years the Democratic party breaks loose with the theory that you can make the people more prosperous by making their dollar less valuable. 1854, wild cat banking; 1874, fiat money; 1894, a 50 cent silver dollar. What for 1914?

The logic of many of the disaffected is, "If you don't find things the way you want them in your own household, then go and set up another household." We don't believe in that kind of logic.

Why say that Boston is no longer the intellectual center of the country, when the Red Sox are 76 points in the lead for the American league pennant?

So far none of the Congressmen have asked to have "Pilgrim's Progress" printed as a part of the Congressional Record.

Mrs. Daisy Castleman filed suit yesterday for divorce from Sidney Castleman. Mrs. Castleman alleges cruel and inhuman treatment. She asks the restoration of her maiden name, Daisy Morrison.

GLASS PARTITION CAR.

People who rode to the fair grounds today on the I. & C. shuttle trains had their first opportunity of viewing the new car, No. 316, that is equipped with a glass partition between the smoker and the motorman's compartment so that passengers may have a clear view of the track ahead. The car is also equipped with apparatus to be used with the new Seamen's signal system which has been approved by the railroad commission and will be installed on all the I. & C. tracks.

From the trend of affairs in Wayne county it would seem that young Mr. Leeds still has something to learn about this political game.

Whoopee! The Greensburg Graphic has gone Bull Moose. We'll wager there are a lot of Bull Moose mourners at Greensburg right now.

Our own Louis Ludlow, Washington correspondent for the Indianapolis Star, prefers a charge against Sen. Penrose—mind it's Louis preferring the charge, not any senator or investigating committee. Here it is "While admitting enough to condemn any public man, Senator Penrose lodged some of the most important charges made against him." Really, it seems to be quite a personal matter with the Star any more.

About time this swatting-the-fly campaign is over we'll have to begin the shop-early thing. Surely now, you can't realize what a task our job is.

Boston's mayor favors kitchen gardens to reduce the cost of living. He does not seem to realize that the hoe blisters the hands much more than the base ball bat or the billiard cue.

Pension agencies abolished and checks mailed from Washington. How in thunder do they expect people are going to live if the government keeps on reducing the number of jobs?

The high cost of meat can not be laid on short crops this year, but there are competent press agents who will be able to find some other equally good excuse.

The daughter of Dr. Elliot of Harvard says she is going to learn to cook before getting married. Her fiancé would have been up against very stiff competition if this had been known before.

The campaign is getting hot in Vermont, and one candidate has made the unpardonable error of advocating the wrong kind of feed for Holstein cattle.

SOCIETY NEWS

Mrs. Will Amos entertained with a luncheon yesterday afternoon at her home south of the city in honor of her guest, Mrs. James P. Simonds of Indianapolis and Miss Florence Frazee of this city, whose engagement to Helm Woodard of Cincinnati has been announced. The guests spent the afternoon doing fancy work for Miss Frazee. The guests were: Miss Bernice Anderson, Miss Georgia Amos, Mrs. Luella Crumpecker of Indianapolis, Miss Anna McGee, Miss Marie Clark and her guest, Miss Susan Mausmen of Wabash, Miss Clarence Amos, Mrs. Lawrence Root and Miss Florence Frazee.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Oscar Carroll and wife, near Clarksburg Wednesday, when their daughter, Miss Daisy was united in marriage to Thomas Meek, son of George Meek and wife, near Clarksburg, says the Greensburg News. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Creath of Clarksburg, after which an elegant six course dinner was served. Thirty relatives were present. The bride is a charming young lady of pleasing personality and the bridegroom is a prosperous young farmer of that vicinity. Mrs. Mary Eckles, Will Jones and wife and Mrs. James Evans of Rushville were present. The happy couple left yesterday afternoon for a trip through the West.

WRONG RICHEY.

The Daily Republican was in error yesterday in stating that it was Squire Ben Richey of Milroy, who was fined in police court for public intoxication. A man named Richey was fined all right, and his nickname is "Squire," but it was not Squire Ben. The wrong information came through the annals of the regular source of police news, but the Republican's informant misunderstood the case.

Winthrop was writing; we could hear the click of a typewriter, but he saw us through an open window and came to meet us with a pencil behind his ear and crumpling a piece of yellow paper.

"We won't interrupt," Laura insisted. "I know the way about."

"I'm glad you came," he said. "I have my heroine where I don't know just what to do with her. She'll keep for a while. You'll be sure to give me an idea. I've been aching, too, for an excuse to go look at my artichokes; nearly as big as cabbages, and they try to tell me you can't grow them so near the shore."

He led the way through a wide hallway into a dear old-time living-room with a goodly litter of books and magazines everywhere, and an inviting bay-window that looked out upon the ocean. Here stood a big desk, topped by a typewriter, and more litter, this time of yellow copy paper. An inadequate waste-basket was overflowing with crumpled sheets and a smoldering pipe rested on a window-sill. An old-fashioned safe was most importantly imbedded in the wall. I took in the place ecstatically.

"Is this where the Muse works?" I asked.

"I don't know anything about the Muse," he replied as he smiled at me and rubbed the back of his head; he had a trick of doing that. "I know it's where I think, by brute strength, usually with a telegram on my desk from an impatient magazine man who wants to know why the deuce I don't send him a story."

I had to be amused, although it was all so very different to what I expected—no dreamy far-away attitude and the burning fires of genius demanding to be released.

"Do you believe what you write?" I asked curiously.

"I hope not," put in Laura from the typewriter where she was reading the yellow sheet it held. "This heroine of yours ought to have a good shake. Why, Winthrop, you can't possibly mean—"

"Don't preach," he interrupted. "Perhaps she's the horrible example. You don't expect the heroine in a story to behave properly, do you? It would never sell. I shall justify her, of course, and whitewash her at the end. It's what the public demands."

"Do you always write what the public demands?" I questioned.

"When I need the money," he smiled. "Just now I need the money badly. That's going to be a best-seller." He abruptly changed the subject. "We shall have some tea, and I'll show you the prettiest lot of artichokes you ever saw."

He went out to give the order for the tea while I examined the books that lined the walls and the dear, old-time pictures hung in such quaint order over the mantel.

"Hardly looks like the home of a thief, do you think?" Laura asked abruptly.

"No," I replied. I shivered from the very shock of her question. "Laura, you can think of such awful things."

"Well, there's Natalie, and here's Winthrop, and if she loses just one more silly bracelet it won't be right to let the matter alone. I worry about it."

THE FIRST GRAY HAIR SIGN OF AGE

Easy Way to Preserve Natural Color of the Hair and Make It Grow.

A harmless remedy, made from common garden sage, quickly restores gray hair to natural color. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its color and lustre, is just as important as to care for teeth to keep them from discoloring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion, and yet neglect your hair, when gray hair is even more conspicuous and suggestive of age than wrinkles or a poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural color and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden Sage and Sulphur, combined with other valuable remedies for dry, harsh, faded hair, dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. After a few applications of this simple, harmless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural color, in a short time the dandruff will be removed, and your hair will no longer come out but will start to grow as Nature intended it should.

Don't neglect your hair, for it goes further than anything else to make or mar your good looks. You can buy this remedy at any drug store for fifty cents a bottle, and your druggist will give you money back if you are not satisfied after using. Purchase a bottle today. You will never regret it when you realize the difference it will make in your appearance.

HAY FEVER ATTACKS QUICKLY ENDED

Just Try Ely's Cream Balm, A Cleansing, Healing Antiseptic Cream.

Are you half sick for two or three months every summer with Hay Fever—violent sneezing spells, running at the nose, intense itching in the corners of the eyes, pain and soreness in the back of the throat, at nights a stuffed-up feeling in the head and an asthmatic wheezing in the throat and chest? If so, you can get almost instant relief by simply using a cleansing, healing antiseptic Cream called Ely's Cream Balm.

Hay Fever is due to an extremely sensitive condition of the membrane lining the nose and throat. Dust, smoke and certain odors irritate this delicate inside skin, it becomes inflamed, caused a watery discharge from the nose and violent spasms of sneezing.

Ely's Cream Balm will relieve all these distressing symptoms in five minutes' time. It opens up the air passages, soothes, heals and strengthens the weakened, inflamed membranes, restores them to healthy, normal condition, so that you are not subject to Hay Fever attacks.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today. Give it a fair trial, and get your money back if you are not satisfied.

I wish she would leave her foolish Jewels in town."

She could say nothing further, for Winthrop returned. We had tea, and saw the garden, but when we went back home Winthrop insisted that we go by boat and not by the country road.

"Great engine you have there," I remarked, listening to the steady beat of it as we began to move. "What is your power?"

"Just twenty, but we cut the water like a knife," he replied. "Built for speed, and will run away from anything on this shore. Hope you don't mind the spray. Can't help but pick up water at this gait."

"Is This Where the Muse Works?" I Asked.

He put us off at our landing, waved us adieu, and was soon out of sight again around the bend in the shore. I stood listening to the hum of the receding engine until it was just a pulse-beat in the air.

"I like the sound of an engine," I apologized to Laura. "I'll know the sound of that one next time. Do you think he would let me run the boat some day?"

"I am sure he would," Laura replied. "Are you fond of a boat? You might mention it to Hap. That's John's boat out there. Pretty, isn't it? We don't call it a yacht. After all there's nothing so pretty as a sailboat."

CHAPTER X.

The First Big Robbery.

By the end of the week Lone Oak was like the old riddle: "House full, yard full." People were everywhere, and day by day new motors appeared with more. We presented the appearance of a modish, prosperous summer hotel, some of the guests all season, some only for a week.

His Grace arrived with a flourish, preceded by fifteen trunks, his secretary, his two valets, and the butler—the chauffeur brought him—and followed by a dozen newspaper men and photographers. And we all learned to bow and kowtow with the proper shade of deference due to a duke who could trace his ancestors back to the eleventh century.

I never so much regretted my lack of knowledge on "How to Behave to a Duke." I, myself, resolved to lay in books on the subject as soon as I could get to town, but all the other women went scurrying to novels about dukes. Lydia Abercrombie even memorized some bits of conversation. There was only one irreverent member of our household—Hap. He called His Grace "Old Sport" to his face and "His Nobs" behind his back and, with a young American's disdain of ceremony and gold lace, cordially despised him.

In the confusion attendant upon the arrival of so many and the continual shifting crowds, I simply couldn't remember everybody, and whether they were husbands and wives, or sisters and brothers; and so on through the combinations of relationship. I bought a little red note-book and jotted them all down—like the list you send to a grocer—and every night Laura would come in and go over it to see if I had everything correct. The entries were in alphabetical order after this fashion:

ABERCROMBIE—Mother, two daughters. Father week-ends and holidays. Millions and family. Mother thin; talk fat to her. Daughters both pretty; Lydia good tennis, bridge; Dorothy sings, looks good at piano. Father wants to be next governor.

AYER—Father, mother and Charlie. More millions and family. Father a corker, golf; mother stout, keep off; good bridge; Charlie a silly dear.

BLISS—(See Eligibles).

CUTLER—Widow; beautiful; most accomplished woman I ever met; excellent French, golf, good bridge; knew the duke abroad.

That was one page, and my notes covered twenty. I had the eligibles in a department of their own which I didn't turn over for Laura's inspection, because of some remarks I had entered in the line of my duty concerning her future. And an attractive list of girls, one of whom I was trying to settle upon for Hap in the line of my duty concerning his future. Two looked suitable for John Crowninshield, although I hadn't been engaged to settle his future. Jane Bliss, who was pretty and sensible—sounds like a paradox—and Lydia Abercrombie, who, next to Jo and Laura, was the dandiest girl I ever met; but he never looked twice at any woman in his life and was just a dear to all of them. It broke my heart to see him drifting.

I classed my golf fiends, bridge fiends, and so on, for quick consultation and studied it as hard as Jo ever did her Practical Economy. I seeped in so much about everything from everybody and everybody from everything that I was like a sponge—squeeze me and I'd spout social information. I began to be able to say casually, "Oh, sixty millions!" and ceased to think I was playing a part in a society play where there was a French duke in the cast. I whirled in the scheme of things, marveling every instant that I didn't fly off into the air from tangential impetus.

A continual house-party of thirty or more, made up of a few human beings, a great many snobs, and brilliantly topped off with a duke, was a stupendous thing. We rivaled Mrs. Henry Dykeman in the brilliancy of our entertainments, and the Hemmingsways in the novelty of theirs. Our musicals were characteristic, our teas innovations. We instituted a cotillion

GO RIGHT AT IT

Friends and Neighbors in Rushville Will Show You a Way.

Get at the root of the trouble. Rubbing an aching back may relieve it, But won't cure it if the kidneys are weak. You must reach the root of it—the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it: Reach the cause; attack the pain. Are recommended by many Rushville people. Harrison Levi, 931 N. Sexton St., Rushville, Ind., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that ever did me any good. I am glad to confirm what I said in their praise in 1907. I had to get up several times at night to pass the kidney secretions which were sometimes attended with pain. I had severe backaches, too. I finally got Doan's Kidney Pills at Johnson & Co's. Drug Store and it did not take them long to make me well. The pains all left the actions of my kidneys became regular. I am now free from kidney weakness."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

East First St. J. W. Tompkins Rushville, Ind.

Saturday night from which it was a social crime to be absent. We glittered so we were besieged by more newspaper men and women, much to Mrs. Hazard's secret disgust, but we had to pay the penalty of the glitter. The public may not have been interested, but the newspapers thought our French duke was too important to be hidden.

The only thing left to us of our old order was that early tennis of mine with Hap, and Mrs. Hazard behind the coffee-pot every morning at eight o'clock, in our own little breakfast-room where only the actual family and myself were present. It was the best of the day, the only time when we could feel that our souls were our own—I know that's the way I felt about it. Afterward Hap would go in to town in the gray car to sell real estate and John Crowninshield to defend, if that's what a lawyer does.

Then Mrs. Hazard would call the cabinet to order—she was secretary of state—and we'd begin. She would grease the wheels of the establishment, sort out who was coming and who was going until the butterflies began to flutter out at noon, and I began on the golf course, and the tennis players on the tennis courts—sounds easy, but left to themselves the tennis players were just as apt to be on the golf course, and grouchy in consequence—arranging motor parties, with just the right people in a car, and getting bridge games going where the breeze was lively enough to keep cool and not lively enough to blow the cards away; filling in when anybody needed an extra in anything. Then I had to manipulate the crowd for a swim or a sail before we started in on the evening round.

Those were the ordinary days when there was no grand affair on hand. I couldn't have stood it if I hadn't had nerves of steel and the constitution of an ox. But always there was Mrs. Hazard holding in on that chuckle of hers, smiling approval. Sometimes she would take me in her fat arms and pat my hair and worry if I looked tired. She insisted on my having a maid, although I was used to doing things for myself, but I didn't always have time to turn around and pick up the gown I had taken off.

BECAUSE WIFE REFUSED KISS

Morton Gregory Thought Fit to Kill Himself.

BROKE UP A WEDDING PARTY

While Reception in Honor of His Sister's Marriage Was in Progress, a Washington (Ind.) Man Swallowed Poison and Created Scene in Hotel, Declaring That His Wife Had Declined to Kiss Him Goodnight.

Washington, Ind., Aug. 22.—Morton Gregory, aged twenty-nine, a railroad shop employe, son of F. S. Gregory, a local grain dealer, killed himself at the City hotel by drinking carbolic acid. Gregory swallowed the poison after his wife had refused him a kiss when they retired for the night.

Leaving his bed, Gregory borrowed a dime from the hotel proprietor, went to a drug store, bought the acid and returned to his room, drank the poison in his wife's presence, after writing a note to his father. Crazed from the effects of the acid, Gregory chased his wife from the hotel and fell limp in an alley. He died ten minutes later. A reception in honor of the marriage of one of his sisters was being held when he committed suicide.

BROUGHT HIM DOWN

Notorious Burglar Taken by the Police of Seymour.

Seymour, Ind., Aug. 22.—Oliver Snyder, a notorious burglar of Brown county, was shot by J. T. Abell, chief of police, when he tried to escape after committing fifteen robberies here. The bullet entered his right thigh and his injury was so serious it was necessary to amputate his leg close to the hip.

Snyder was released from Jeffersonville reformatory June 20, after serving three years for robberies at Scottsburg. At that place he robbed about twenty houses in one night and in attempting to arrest him Marshal Walker was shot and wounded.

In attempting to escape from the police, Snyder followed his old plan of robbing one house while the police were looking for him, and then breaking into an adjoining residence, where he would hide until the police were gone. It required fifteen men to round him up.

Snyder was seen leaving a house and a policeman at once shot at him, the bullet grazing his shoulder. He robbed another house after that, and when seen an hour later by the police they gave chase. Snyder refused to surrender, and he was brought to the ground by the police chief's revolver.

Snyder's father is a minister in Brown county. Young Snyder taught school in Brown county for several years. He was taken to the hospital here, where his condition was reported as serious.

When Snyder entered the home of George Lockmund, who is employed at night in the railroad yards here, he found Mrs. Lockmund alone and assaulted her.

A Perpetual Motion Enterprise.
Indianapolis, Aug. 22.—Perpetual motion has been achieved at last, judging by the articles of incorporation of a Terre Haute concern filed in the office of the secretary of state. It is known as the Clark Perpetual Motion company and was organized for the purpose of manufacturing and selling the Clark perpetual motion machine. The company is capitalized for $100,000 and the directors are Frank Clark, S. T. Mann and David M. McElhany.

It Was the Same Chap.
Frankfort, Ind., Aug. 22.—The officials of the First and American National banks of this city, who were swindled out of $3,500 by means of forged checks, have identified the photographs of Orville Hodson of Marion, as those of the man who passed the bad checks, and the police are redoubling their efforts to catch the fellow. Hodson only recently obtained $500 from two banks at Hartford City on forged checks.

Lost Footing While Wading.
Crawfordsville, Ind., Aug. 22.—Paul Vance, aged sixteen, son of Nathaniel Vance of this city, was drowned at Martin's dam on Sugar creek. He lost his footing while wading and was drawn into the waters immediately below the dam.

SOUTHERLAND TELLS SHERMAN ABOUT IT

Vice President Now Knows of His Renomination.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 22.—To see its leading citizen, James Schoolcraft Sherman, informed that he had been chosen a second time as the vice presidential candidate of the Republican party, an honor never before given twice to the same man by the Republicans, the whole city turned out with thousands of visitors.

Senator Sutherland of Utah delivered the formal notification speech. The arrangements committee made it a gala occasion and there were various forms of amusement and entertainment for the visitors. The day was a record breaker for Utica.

Citizens subscribed the several thousand dollars that the celebration cost and there was little of a partisan nature about the jollification, outside of the set speeches.

Senator Sutherland and the vice president devoted a good part of their speeches to Theodore Roosevelt and his followers. Both accused the former president of attempting to disrupt the Republican party, and defended the action of the Republican national convention.

Marshall's Maine Dates.

Indianapolis, Aug. 22.—Governor Marshall will begin his speaking tour of Maine next Monday. He will deliver an address in Portland on that day and speak in Waterville or Augusta the day following. On Aug. 28 he is billed for an address at Bangor and the trip will end at Lewiston Aug. 29.

Stabbed by Highwaymen.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 22.—While A. R. Bridgman was passing a lonely spot in the southern part of the city he was set on by two highwaymen. He was stabbed in the side when he failed to hold up his hands. The men stole several dollars from him.

Gave Liquor to Young Girl.

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 22.—In the city police court Mayor Zimmerman fined Gus Kroma, Charles Kroma and Charles Stephens $100 and costs each on the charge of giving intoxicating liquor to a fourteen-year-old girl.

FARMERS ARE PARTIAL TO BIG THRESHING DINNERS

back in the day when it was inaugurated.

As a matter of fact, the big dinner would appear to be a useless attachment to the harvest occasion, but somehow or other the people seem to be slow in wanting to get away from it.

The women folks appear willing to cook and stew and swelter in the intense heat that accompanies the harvest time they call in the neighbor women folks who appear willing to cook the good things in their crude form and when they are served they almost make one wish that threshing day should be every day. That is, a man is liable to harbor that desire "just before the battle," but after he has dined, he vows that he will never do it again, as he invariably attempts to partake of every dish that is available, and when the good wife asks him if he will have another piece of chicken "he thinks he will," and the same thing applies to the other and varied viands. And thus the big dinner continues to be the big noise on the threshing day.

Threshing without its big dinner would be much of the order of Hamlet with Hamlet cut out. At least, that is the way many people look at it.

As a matter of fact, the big dinner is an expensive proposition and there is doubt whether it is conducive to the physical welfare of a harvest hand, but iced drinks and iced dishes are not health promoters during the hot spells, yet mortal fools continue to enjoy them.

But there is another angle to the big threshing dinner. It is regarded much in the manner of a guest day and folks from the city like the chance to mingle with their country cousins on that day.

"Mandy" and the children find that they can spend a few blissful hours at that time when the grain is being prepared for the market or for the bin. Neighbors living within the sound of the old dinner bell, which has long since been out of tune, also find that they can run over to Mrs. Smith's lend a helping hand and at the same time enjoy a "getting together" that comes but once a year. Neighbors greet each other with a cordiality that is inspiring and there is that community of interest apparent that impresses one with the fact that this great world is, after all, the abode of much happiness.

And that is another reason why the big dinner will keep on being big. I believe that all of the fun of the threshing season would be ended should the dinners be done away with. At least, it appears that way to many persons.

The farmer who indulges these overgrown repasts does it in the full knowledge that they mean expense and labor, but he is ever willing to forget those things if he can afford enjoyment for his guests.

Yes, the big dinner has come to be top heavy and tedious, but the chances are that we will have to worry along with it for some time in definite. Yes, the big dinner of the year, for this feast has the one on Thanksgiving "skinned a mile," and has come to stay.

It was as one Rush country farmer expressed it, when several of the tillers of the soil took advantage of the fair weather and threshed their grain: "The dinner is the thing that the help expects and they generally get everything that they look for."

T.J. GERAGHTY ADDS DASH OF LOCAL COLOR TO N. Y. STORY

on, I am sending under separate cover to Alec Frazee, our P. M., some post cards to tack up in the post office (I will get them back when I get home in the early fall.) Some of the post cards I am sending show our university, Broadway looking north, the oldest Oddfellow in America, the Bridge of Sighs and Tombs, Tenement House Washings (hung six stories in the air), the New York Police Parade, the Aquarium and other sights, too numerous to mention. Course, I have not seen all these places yet, but the boys back home know I'll see pretty near everything that's going before I leave these diggings. It's a chance in a lifetime.

I have been swimming in the old Atlantic Ocean, the second largest ocean in the world, as you may know. It's the most overated you could imagine. I'll never forget how I used to stand around with my eyes bulging out and my heart thumping and burning in the old V. G. and R. depot back home, looking at those pictures of Atlantic City and Coney Island beaches every summer.

Used to wish and wish I could take one of them in, and imagined it surely would be just about the caper to take a swim in the ocean. I remembered I saved up for two winters in the Building Association No. 10 to take in an Atlantic City excursion. Had it figured to a cent what it was going to cost me. Folks were going to fit me out with a big basket of fried chicken and the like, and I was going to sleep on the velvety day coach cushions going and coming. But somehow or another I never got to go. One spring my buggy horse up and died and that put me back. Next year I had to pay money to a dentist, and so it went. And I don't give a rap now if I did miss going. I want to say to the young men back home, "Don't be tempted by alluring posters." It's just like Uncle Jude Marshall used to say about the troops that played in the Melodeon Hall. After they put up their bifalutin pictures all over creation he'd say, "Just take stock in about half what they promise, then discount that, unless you have a comp, for letting them put a bill in your place." And he was right. Those pictures of folks gallivanting around on the beach by the thousand and acting like they were having a good time reminds me of the saying, "Distant fields always look greener." I want to tell you that the swimming in little old Flatrock Creek, back in old Boone, has got ocean baths beat all hollow. I've tried both of them and I can speak with authority. I'll venture to say that if city folk ever swim in a good clear creek like ours they would give the ocean the good-bye for good.

You never miss the water till the well runs dry, they say, and I never took such a yearning for Flatrock as I did after I had lapped around in the Atlantic a while. I recalled many a dandy time at old Two Trees at the south bend of the creek below the Blackledge lower eighty. How we used to duck each other, crack rocks under water and most deafen a fellow, tied each other's clothes and then wet the knots, and cut up high jinks in general. There is nothing of that sort here. They just swim like they do every-thing else—in a hurry and businesslike fashion. They are about as frolicsome as the directors of the Boone County National Bank at a closed meeting. Give me good old Flatrock, snapping turtles, mud and all, where you can swim either in the sun or shade, and you know a fellow to speak to.

Just let me tell you of my first, last and only swim in the broad Atlantic. Last Saturday was as hot as all get-out. One of the fellows at the boarding house asked me to go to Coney Island for a "dip," as he put it. He caught me just right, I was aching to go somewhere, but wasn't for stirring around too much until I have my city map down pat and get the lay of the land, I was hot when I started, but when I was nearly burned to a cinder before we got to Coney. We changed cars and trains every whistitch and wound around like a blacksnake looking for a berry patch.

I just "put on" like I had been swimming in the ocean just oceans of times. Soon as I saw the big and fancy buildings of Coney Island and got a peep at the ocean I began to unlace my shoes and unbutton my shirt. But we had to wait in a long, perspiring line for near an hour to get tickets for bathing suits, as no one is allowed to go in here without a suit. Then we had to wait again for right smart of a spell while some fat women handed out the suits at a booth. One asked me as I came up:

"Thirty six?"

"Nope, 148," I said. She meant the size of my suit, I thought she meant the number of my ticket. Upshot of it was that my suit fit like a Mother Hubbard without a belt. But we've all got to learn one way or another. I didn't enjoy my swim one whit. There was no springing board to dive off of or trees hanging out over a deep hole with trapeze and such like, as we have back at Two Trees. The water just keeps rolling in and hitting you around the knees, and you have to keep your eyes peeled for the big waves. Besides, I kept swallowing water, and it was the saltiest thing you ever tasted. (I have sent a small vial of it to Aunt Sally, enough for quite a few of the folks to taste, because you won't want much of the blamed stuff.)

Worst part of the whole swimming business was when I came out of the water. I was as salty and sticky as a piece of salt pork. I felt a hundred times worse off after I came out than when I went in. Took me nearly an hour to dress. The fellow with me asked me if I was putting my clothes on with a shoe horn, which I thought was pretty cute. But he's a great cut-up—a regular clown. Coming back on the train and cars was worse and hotter than going out. I felt mucky and sticky, and was clean played out. Give me old Flatrock every time. This is all this time.

Yours,

LOCAL HORSES MAKE BEST SPORT

the amphitheater the real thrills of the afternoon. Albert Capp, driving his black mare, Rema, O., which has been victorious in road races at the fair before, won the first two heats, and it looked like he would have every thing his own way. But Jim Hubbard, the colored horseman, came forward with a rare burst of speed from his horse, Florence L., by Simmore, in the third heat that made the crowd shout.

Jim finally won the race after it went five heats, the last three all being close finishes between his horse and Capp's. Rema O. broke at the turn in the third and fifth heats. The breaks were largely responsible for her losing the race, as she lost so much ground on each break that she was unable to make up the distance. Capp complained to the judges that Hubbard drove into his horse in the stretch in the fourth heat, cutting him out of the pole and causing him to slacken the speed of his horse enough to lose the race. The judges cautioned Hubbard about driving in front of a man with the pole, but let him have the heat.

The other three places in the race belonged to anybody apparently. Jim Geraghty and Bert Osborne traded about with the third and fifth position, and Charlie Johnson stuck to fourth place with the exception of the first heat when he won second position.

Race Horse Gossip

Some good sport is promised for this afternoon with ten entries in the country road pace. A race horse man wanted to wager last night that Starter Rich Wilson would not get 'em away for a go in three trials in any one heat with so many "green hands."

Horsemen are looking forward with interest to the two-year-old pace Friday. There are six entries. This is an innovation on a local fair racing card. Besides the fifty dollar purse, a special offer has been made of a season to Charlie Hayt and a half season to Ess H. Kay to the dam of the winner.

Rich Wilson is handling the red flag at this year's races. Rich is a starter who can tell the drivers what to do in a style that makes them believe he means business, and his services are in great demand on the half mile tracks.

Besides making votes, "Billy" Risk of New Castle, the Republican nominee for congress from this district, is mingling with the crowd in the stand and acting as one of the judges. He was congratulated on every side yesterday for having won the nomination for congress.

With "Billy" King, secretary of the fair association, "Billy" Risk, Republican congressional nominee and one of the judges, and "Billy" Brown, president of the fair association, all in the judge's stand, it was decided yesterday that there were enough "Billies" on the job, but that there might be room for a "billie" goat or two if some one wanted to carry them up.

Horsemen in the judge's stand yesterday were guessing that Florence L., driven by Jim Hubbard, and winner of the road trot, could trot a mile in 2:30 if she were hitched right. She pulled a heavy road cart that "weighed a ton," in the parlance of horsemen. They were very much "taken" with the actions of the young mare. She was just broken to work this summer.

W. A. Smith of St. Louis Crossing, who won the 2:27 trot with Allen Boy, a horse that has been training only six weeks, will be remembered as the driver who played in "tough" luck here last year, his horse "going dead" on the home stretch in one heat.

Tomorrow's card will include:

2:17 pace	$300
2:20 trot	300
2:28 three-year-old trot	200
Two-year-old pace	50
